ABOUT THE RALLY

A Regularity Rally

[sometimes called a time-speed-distance or TSD Rally]

Is a type of motorsport competition where the goal is not to be the fastest, but to maintain a precise average speed over a set course

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS

- Objective: Drivers and co-drivers must follow a prescribed route at exactly the speeds indicated in the rally instructions
- Scoring: Instead of racing to finish first, participants are timed at various hidden checkpoints. If they arrive too early or too late compared to the "ideal time," they receive penalty points - The team with the fewest penalties wins
- Skills Involved: Navigation, timing, and consistency matter much more than outright speed.
- Vehicles: Classic and vintage car enthusiasts enjoy regularity rallies because they don't require pushing the cars to their limits
- In short: A regularity rally is a precision-driving event where the challenge is accuracy and discipline, not speed
